Editorial Uncertainties Of Polls And Earnings To Keep Markets On Tenterhooks

The first week of the month of April 2019 will go down in the history of stock market as a landmark week as the BSE Sensex for the first time breached the 39,000 mark on the first day of the new financial year, which also happens to be the index's 40th birth anniversary. The optimism on Dalal Street was fuelled by core sector, which showed some green shoots by clocking in stronger growth in February at 2.1 per cent versus 1.5 per cent in January. Also, the government recorded the highest GST collection in the last month of fiscal 2018-19 at Rs 1.06 trillion. With the Bank Nifty already touching its all-time high level on March 12 and the BSE Sensex registering its all-time high on the very first day of new fiscal, now it was the Nifty's turn to keep pace and it did not disappoint the investors/traders as the index also registered new all-time high on April 3. But it seemed it was just a gesture as Nifty failed to sustain at the top and drifted into the negative territory amid uncertainty over monetary policy and the negative monsoon report by the Skymet, the private weather forecaster which estimated that monsoon could be below average due to the El Nino effect. Also, the markets were seen apprehensive about the SC ruling, which is expected to delay the NPA resolution.

The Monetary Policy Committee (MPC) of the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) decided to reduce the policy rate by 25 bps to 6 per cent and it maintained the neutral policy stance. The GDP growth for 2019-20 is projected at 7.2 per cent.

Following a lull in the primary market in FY18-19, there is some excitement seen in the IPO market in recent times as the market's sentiments have improved. The issue of Rail Vikas Nigam was subscribed 1.8 times, while that of Metropolis Healthcare opened on Wednesday and Polycab is another issue all set to hit the D-Street.

On the global front, concerns over slowdown in the global economy cooled off as China, the world's second largest economy, reported a strong reading of official PMI. In the US, consumer sentiment and manufacturing output both rose in March, which will revive investors' itch for riskier assets. Also, the US-China trade talks are at the final stage, which kept the sentiments in an upbeat mood. Meanwhile, on the Brexit front, MPs have voted by a majority of one to force the British prime minister to ask for an extension to the Brexit process, in a bid to avoid any no-deal scenario.

Going ahead in the coming week, the centre of attention would be India's general elections. The first phase of the polls will be held on April 11 and the polling will go on in phases till the conclusion of the final phase on May 19. The results of the polls will be declared on May 23. Also, the Q4FY2018-19 earning seasons will be the talk of the town. A CRISIL report says that India Inc. revenue growth is likely to halve in the Q4 due to slump in commodity prices. On the global front, the outcome of trade talks between the US and China will be on the market participants' radar along with the movement of crude oil prices. Indian stock markets have been on a tear lately and if we examine the current rally, it is approximating its price-wise and duration-wise maturity compared with the rally which began from the March 2018 low to the high of August 2018, gaining about 18.17 per cent in 23 weeks' time frame. At the present juncture, Nifty has rallied about 18 per cent from October 2018 low to the April 2019 high of 11,761, in the last 23 weeks. Going forward, the markets are likely to remain on the tenterhooks till the outcome of the general elections and earnings season are known.

We had recommended Mphasis in volume no. 35, issue no. 15 (dated Feb 04, 2019), when the scrip was trading at Rs 991. Our recommendation was backed by factors like strong performance and the likelihood of improvement in the core business. In Q3FY19, the company posted strong performance with growth in revenue by 12 per cent YoY and profit by 29 per cent YoY. Strong growth in core business and DXC/HP business was offset by a slowdown in the digital risk business. The company management remains confident of delivering 15-17 per cent margins in the medium term, led by automation resulting in operational efficiencies from

- ✓ Current Observation: Technically, the stock is trading near to its lifetime high and above the recent pivot. It is also breaking out the 36-week 'cup and handle' pattern. On a daily chart, the stock has also broken out of the 'inverted head and shoulder' pattern, which is also a bullish sign. It is trading above the long and short term moving averages and all of them are turned upside. During the last four months, it had tested the Rs 2016 level and has broken it this week decisively.
- ✓ Its ADX is above 25 level, which shows strength in an uptrend. The directional momentum indicators +DI is much above the -DI, which is also a positive sign. The RSI above 60 in the weekly and daily charts is in super bullish zone. The MACD line crossed over the signal line above the zero line this week, suggesting that the bullish momentum is picking up in the stock. The volumes are also on the higher side.
- ✓ Williams Accumulation and Distribution indicator is at lifetime high, indicating that the smart money is flowing into the stock. The overall institutional holding (FII+DII) increased to 89.25 per cent in the December quarter. The FIIs holding the stock rose by 37 to 1779. Its price strength (William O Neil's RS) is at 77 and is also turned upside on a weekly chart. The stock is meeting all the CANSLIM criteria.
- ✓ One can buy this stock at Rs 2041.25 with a stop loss of Rs 1975. The targets are open towards Rs 2165 in the very short term and Rs 2210 in the medium to long term.

REVIEW OF STOCK STRATEGY

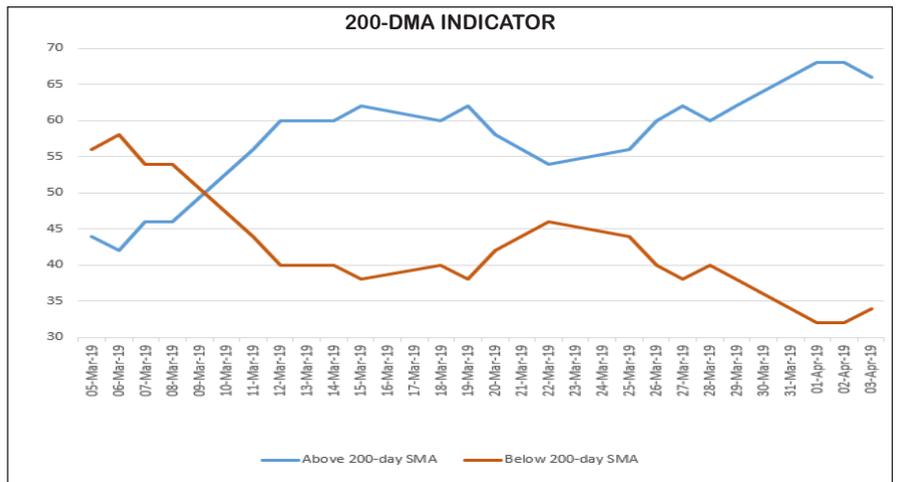

We had recommended our readers to buy the stock of Merck Ltd at Rs 3558.15 in issue no. 23 (dated April 1, 2019). Post our recommendation, the stock moved higher in line with our expectation and went on to touch the level of around Rs

3800. We had given a 'BOOK PROFIT' message at the level of Rs 3756.75 through our SMS service on April 1, 2019. Thus, investors who had taken position according to this strategy would have made decent profit

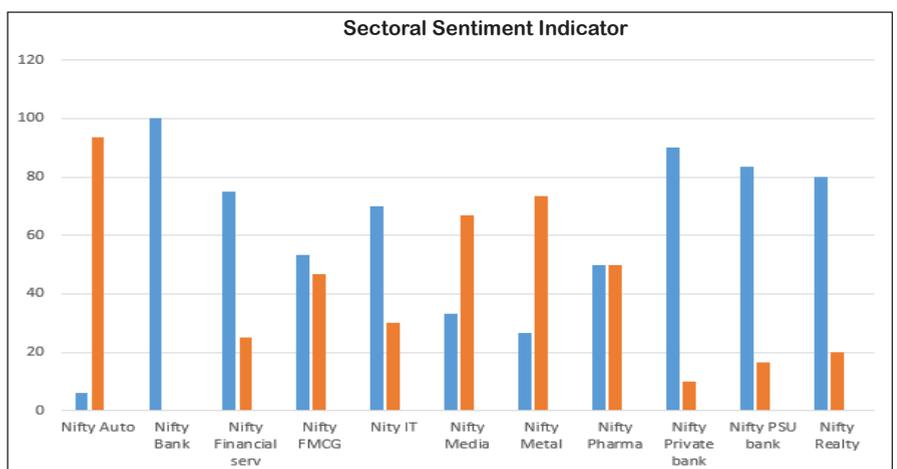

SENTIMENT INDICATORS

200-DMA INDICATOR: This indicator is a measure of the percentage of Nifty 50 stocks that are trading above/below their 200-day simple moving average. The 200-DMA is considered as an important and one of the basic trend following indicators that can be used to determine long-term trend of a security. Almost 66 per cent stocks that constitute the Nifty50, the bellwether equity benchmark, are trading above 200-DMA, while 34 per cent stocks are trading below their 200-DMA. There has been uninterrupted improvement in the ratio of stocks trading above its 200-DMA since the last week of February. On a week-on-week comparison basis, we observed that the indicator marked a high of 68 per cent and on Wednesday we witnessed reversal from that level as 2% of the stocks slipped below their 200-DMA due to severe fall from the higher levels in the index. The continuous improvement in the ratio is halted on w-o-w basis, which clearly indicates that the upward momentum is likely to take pause in the upcoming days.

Sectoral Sentiment Indicator : This indicator basically interprets the number of stocks in the sectoral indices trading above/below their 200-day moving average. This will help us to know which of the sectors are improving their performance. According to the sectoral sentiment indicator, the Bank Nifty, Nifty Private Bank, Nifty PSU Bank are extremely overstretched at the moment as more than 80 per cent of the stocks are trading above their 200-DMA and the prices of majority of the stocks are trading way above their 200-DMAs, so we expect the above indices may stall their momentum and may witness sideways action. On the flip side, the Nifty Auto is in extremely oversold zone as 93.75 per cent constituent stocks are trading below their 200-DMAs. The Nifty Pharma index is at the neutral level as the constituents of this sector are trading at 1:1 ratio, that is, 50 per cent stocks are trading above their 200-DMAs, while 50 per cent stocks are trading below their 200-DMAs.

Indicator To Gauge Internal Strength : This indicator helps us to gauge the internal strength of the market. Among the Nifty 500 stocks, increasing number of stocks reaching new 52-week highs and fewer stocks reaching new 52-week lows is symbolic of a bull market, and vice-versa being true of a bear market. Considering the below chart, it clearly indicates that for the last five trading sessions, an average of 14 stocks are marking fresh 52-week highs, while about three stocks are marking new 52-week lows. On March 29 and April 1, 2019, we saw the highest number of stocks hitting 52-week highs in the last five trading sessions. The ratio on March 29 was 22:1, where 22 stocks registered a new 52-week highs and only one stock registered 52-week low. On April 1, this ratio was 20:1, where 20 stocks touched 52-week highs and only one stock hit 52-week low. Thereafter, the number of stocks hitting 52-week high did not see any significant improvement and the ratio turned 8:3 and 12:4 as on April 2 & 3, 2019, respectively. This clearly indicates that stocks are not participating as much as was seen on March 29 and April 1.

Technical

WHAT LIES AHEAD : NEAR-TERM PICTURE

SPOT NIFTY : Nifty tested its prior lifetime highs during this week. After making a series of indecisive and bearish patterns, it finally gave up the uptrend on Wednesday. The benchmark index is closing below its prior bar low for the last two days, which is a signal that the upward momentum is fading. In the aftermath of the weekly expiry and RBI policy on Thursday, it witnessed high volatility, took support at 8-EMA and settled above that. The Nifty is falling more than 0.25 per cent and volumes are higher than the previous day, which is an indication of distribution. The negative divergence in RSI is clearly visible now. If the RSI on the daily chart falls below the 63 level (now at 65.12), it will be a confirmation of the divergence as well as bearishness. The momentum indicator MACD line is also turning down and the histogram is clearly showing a cool off in momentum. The negative divergence in stochastic oscillator was also confirmed by the cross-under at an extreme high. As per the advanced Jeff Tompkins' TradeTrend setup, on Thursday, the criteria for a Sell set-up has occurred in Nifty. So, avoid any kind of long positions but one can take short positions with 11,660 as stop loss. On the weekly chart, Nifty is forming shooting star kind of bearish pattern at lifetime highs, which is not a good sign at all. If it closes below the 11,572 mark on Friday, the bearishness will strengthen further next week. Even on the weekly chart, the stochastic oscillator cross-under is visible now and any further down in the index will lead to a sharper fall. In any case, as Nifty was unable to move upside towards 11,760 level again, there are enough possibilities of correcting at least 50 per cent of the recent rally, which means testing the 11,200 level again. So, exit longs in the index and apply bearish strategies. As long as Nifty trades below 11,700, hold shorts. The targets are visible towards 11,200 in the next two weeks.

NIFTY DERIVATIVES: Since last expiry, Nifty has gained just 28 points or 0.24 per cent. As the market is witnessing a decline, in two days the open interest (OI) has gone up further. On Thursday, the OI was up by 2.67 per cent. This is a definite indication of shorts build up in the index. In all the strikes above 11,000, call selling is visible. For April 11 weekly option series, the highest call selling happened in 11,800 strike, with an open interest of 800,625, and added fresh shorts of 396,150 on Thursday. 11,700 strike calls also have the highest open interest with an OI of 7,22,625. On just Thursday, this strike added 4,88,250 open interest, which is the highest addition among all. At the same time, at 11,400 strike puts have the highest OI of 5,28,000. The Put-Call ratio is at 1.02. The first week rollovers are at 6.92 per cent. As per currently available derivative data, the max pain is at 11,600. The Nifty will encounter tough resistance at the 11,800-11,700 zone and the supports are at 11,400-11,550 zone for the next week. As there are enough bearish signs visible now, apply bearish vertical spread option strategies in the index.

EXCEL CROP CARE LTD

CMP: ₹3740.80

BSE Code: 532511

I am holding shares of Excel Corp Care Ltd bought at the breakout at Rs 3400 for the short term, The stock is up, so should I sell or wait?
- Manohar Khataavkar

HOLD WITH STOP LOSS OF RS 3550 ON A CLOSING BASIS.

Excel Corp Care Ltd. is currently trading at Rs 3740.80. Its 52-week high/low stand at Rs 4800/Rs 2850 made on August 2, 2018 and May 28, 2018, respectively. The stock had formed a reversal shooting star candle on the daily scale at 52-week high and, thereafter, it witnessed correction. The correction is arrested near the double bottom zone of Rs 2950-Rs 3000. The stock had formed bullish reversal piercing line pattern on February 21, 2019, and bounced sharply and gave a downward sloping trendline breakout at Rs 3325 on March 5, 2019. The stock is trading above its weekly pivot and above its crucial long and short term moving averages, i.e. 20-day EMA, 50-day EMA, 100-day EMA and 200-day EMA. The daily 14-period RSI is quoting at 60.57 with a positive crossover on April 1, 2019, which depicts positive momentum. Moreover, the fast stochastic is also trading above its slow stochastic line. In case the stock sustains above the horizontal trendline resistance, which is currently placed at Rs 3800, we may see the stock extending its upmove. Hence, we suggest you to hold Excel Crop with stop loss of Rs 3550 on a closing basis.

AMARA RAJA

AMARA RAJA BATTERIES LTD.

CMP: ₹675.70

BSE Code: 500008

I had bought Amara Raja Batteries at Rs 745, but it fell sharply and I could not exit. What to do now?
- Mahesh Alatgi

EXIT AMARA RAJA BATTERIES AT CURRENT MARKET PRICE.

Amara Raja Batteries Ltd. is currently trading at Rs.675.70. Its 52-week high/low stand at Rs 907.75/Rs 650 made on August 21, 2018 and April 3, 2019, respectively. The stock had formed spinning top candle as on weekend of August 28, 2015 and, thereafter, it marked a series of gradual lower tops and lower bottoms. At present, the stock is trading below its weekly pivot and below its crucial long and short term moving averages. The 14-period weekly RSI is currently quoting at 35.46 and it is trading below its 9-day average. The weekly MACD stays negative as it is trading below its zero line since last two weeks. Additionally, the Ichimoku on the weekly time frame is clearly giving a negative view as it closed below the KS and TS lines. Currently, the stock has given breakdown of crucial support of Rs 680 with strong volumes, which suggests more downside from the current levels. Hence, we suggest you to exit in Amara Raja Batteries at the current market price.

GVK POWER & INFRA LTD.

CMP: ₹7.40

BSE Code: 532708

I want to buy GVK Power & Infrastructure as it has fallen a lot. Is it the right time to enter for the long term?
- Amit Roy Chowdhury

AVOID BUYING GVK POWER FOR NOW

GVK Power & Infrastructure Ltd. is currently trading at Rs 7.40. Its 52-week high/low stand at Rs 17.50/Rs 5.05 made on April 9, 2018 and February 18, 2019, respectively. The stock had formed reversal dark cloud cover pattern as on weekend of January 19, 2018 and, thereafter, it marked a sequence of lower tops and lower bottoms. The major trend of the stock is negative as it is trading below its weekly pivot as well as all the short and long term moving averages. The volumes are very low and oscillators are lying below 50 and are tilted southwards, which point to some more downside for now. On the weekly scale, the fast stochastic is also trading below its slow stochastic line. Additionally, the Ichimoku chart on weekly time frame is also clearly giving negative view as the stock is trading much below its cloud. Hence, we suggest you to avoid buying GVK Power for now.

TORRENT POWER LTD

CMP: ₹261.70

BSE Code: 532779

Can I buy Torrent Power at the moment for the short term?
- Raman Taneja

BUY TORRENT POWER ONLY ABOVE RS 270 ON A CLOSING BASIS.

Torrent Power Ltd. is currently trading at Rs.261.70. Its 52-week high/low stand at Rs 276.60/Rs 212.10 made on December 3, 2018 and October 1, 2018 respectively. The stock had formed reversal bearish engulfing candle as on weekend of January 25, 2018, and thereafter, it witnessed correction. The correction was halted near the upward sloping trendline support and it coincides with 200-week EMA. The major trend of the stock is positive as it is trading above its weekly pivot and above its crucial long and short term moving averages, i.e. 20-day EMA, 50-day EMA, 100-day EMA and 200-day EMA. However, at present, the stock is hovering around the key resistance level defined by the downward sloping trendline resistance. For any further upside, the stock needs to form sizeable bullish candle above the downward sloping trendline resistance, which is currently placed at Rs 270. Hence, we suggest you to buy Torrent Power only above Rs 270 on a closing basis, if the RSI and volumes support.
