MARKET PREVIEW

US: U.S. stocks rose considerably on Friday, as stronger than expected jobs data in July helped bolster the financial sector, propelling the NASDAQ Composite index and the S&P 500 to all-time record closing highs.

Asia: Asian shares rose on Monday and the dollar stood tall after a stronger-than-expected July jobs report lifted confidence in the strength of the US economy - heightening expectations that the US Federal Reserve could hike interest rates this year.

India: Benchmark share indices ended 1% higher tracking a rally in European shares after the Bank of England on Thursday lowered its key interest rate by 25 basis points and unveiled a stimulus package to cushion the impact of its exit from the European Union. The S&P BSE Sensex ended up 364 points at 28,078 and the Nifty settled 132 points higher at 8,683. In the broader markets, BSE Midcap and Smallcap indices ended up over 1.5% each. Market breadth remained strong with 1817 gainers and 917 losers on the BSE. Market is expected to open with gap up and likely to witness up move during the day

Economy: The U.S. economy created more jobs than expected in July. U.S. nonfarm payrolls rose 255,000 in July. Economists had expected jobs growth of 180,000. June's figure was revised to 292,000 from a previously reported 287,000. Average hourly earnings up 0.3% vs. forecast rise of 0.2%.

The U.S. trade deficit rose to a 10-month high in June as rising domestic demand and higher oil prices boosted the import bill while the lagging effects of a strong dollar continued to hamper export growth. The trade gap increased 8.7% to $44.5 billion in June, the biggest deficit since August 2015. May's trade deficit was revised slightly down to $41.0 billion.

Bank of England Deputy Governor Ben Broadbent said on Friday he would support cutting interest rates again this year, but ruled out using a new bank funding scheme to bring in negative rates by the back door.

Commodities: Crude oil prices edged higher in Asia on Monday with trade data from China, the world's second largest importer, expected to set the regional tone.

Gold prices drifted lower on Monday in Asia as investors awaited trade data from China for direction.

Currency: Speculators pared back bullish U.S. dollar bets this week, as investors were dismayed by poor U.S. economic growth data for the second quarter that dampened expectations for an interest rate hike this year.
