MARKET PREVIEW

US: U.S. stocks were mixed after the close on Wednesday, as gains in the Industrials, Telecoms and Oil & Gas sectors led shares higher while losses in the Utilities, Technology and Consumer Goods sectors led shares lower.

Asia: Most Asian stock markets fell on Thursday as upbeat economic data strengthened the prospect for higher U.S. interest rates, while the dollar's bull run continued as U.S. bond yields hovered near multi-year highs India: Extending gains for the second straight session, the benchmark equity indices settled the day higher ahead of the F&O expiry of November series due today. Positive cues from the Asian markets which surged to one-week highs after the Wall Street saw a second consecutive record-breaking session overnight, contributed to gains. Market is expected to open on negative note and likely to witness volatile trading session ahead of Derivative Expiry.

Economy: New orders for U.S. manufactured capital goods rebounded in October, driven by rising demand for machinery and a range of other equipment, the latest indication of an acceleration in economic growth early in the fourth quarter. The Commerce Department said non-defense capital goods orders excluding aircraft, a closely watched proxy for business spending plans, rose 0.4 % after declining 1.4 % in September

The Federal Reserve made clear that a majority of Federal Open Market Committee members expect to raise rates in December barring external shocks

Britain ramped up its borrowing forecasts by much more than expected and said the vote to leave the European Union would weigh heavily on the economy, giving the government little room to ease the Brexit pressure on households and companies. The Office for Budget Responsibility, Britain's independent budget forecasters, said GDP would grow by 1.4 % in 2017, down from an estimate of 2.2 % made in March, before voters decided to leave the EU.

Commodities: - Oil prices were little changed on Thursday as uncertainty ahead of a planned OPEC-led crude production cut and thin liquidity due to the U.S. Thanksgiving holiday kept traders from making big new bets on markets.

Gold held on to losses early Thursday from the previous session, when it fell 2 %, as the dollar remained strong on expectations of a U.S. Federal Reserve rate hike in December.

Currency: The dollar firmed in Asian trading on Thursday after news of a pickup in U.S. economic growth early in the fourth quarter increased the chances of the Federal Reserve tightening monetary policy.
